Behind the Executive

Ekaterina Guryleva

Underwriter General Lines

Do you have any hobbies people might be surprised to learn about?

People are often surprised to learn that I'm really into target shooting. I practice with a crossbow, air rifle, and sometimes even sports firearms. It is a unique hobby that helps me stay focused and sharp, and improves my concentration, which I have found helpful in many other areas of life.

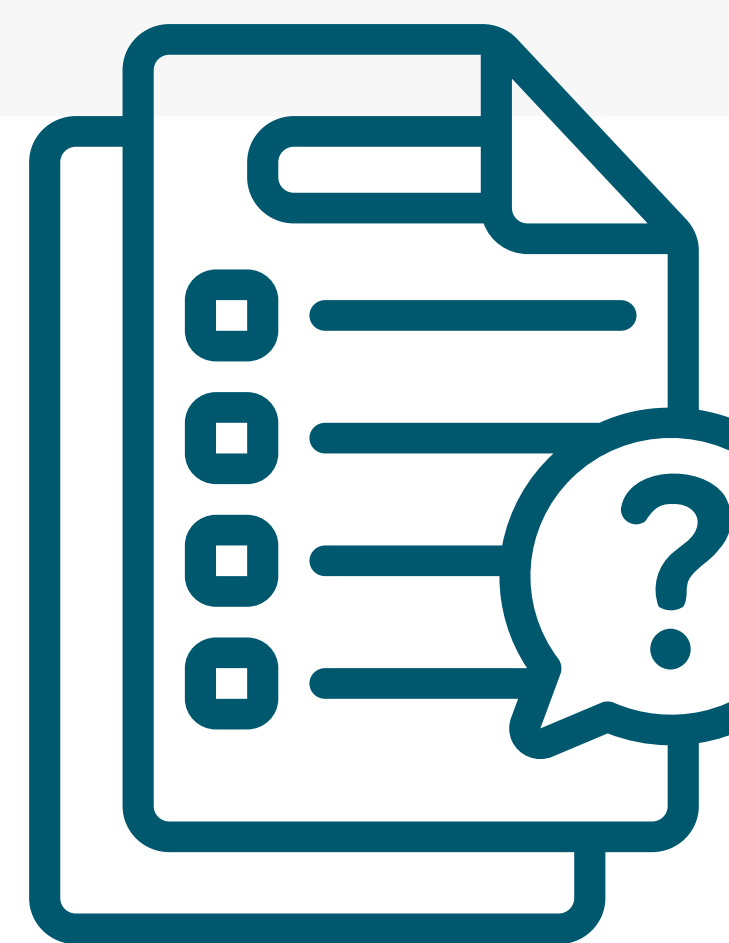

Do you have a favorite quote? What does it mean to you?

One of my favorite quotes is: "The doors we fear to open often hide the greatest treasures." To me, it is a reminder not to shy away from challenges or the unknown. Growth, learning, and some of life is most meaningful experiences often lie just beyond our comfort zone — behind doors that may seem intimidating at first. This quote encourages me to stay curious, take bold steps, and embrace uncertainty as part of the journey.

What keeps you motivated and inspired?

I am motivated the tangible results of well-thought-out decisions. Seeing a smart business move lead to real success — whether it is growth, efficiency, or impact — gives me a strong sense of purpose. Positive feedback and appreciation also inspire me to keep pushing forward, stay proactive, and strive for excellence.

What helps you disconnect from work and recharge?

Spending quality time with my family is the most meaningful way for me to unwind — they are my greatest source of strength and inspiration. I also enjoy being outdoors or going for quiet walks, which help me reset and return to work with a fresh perspective.

OUR ASSOCIATE COMPANIES

Our Associate Companies provide us with strategic and administrative support, enhancing the purpose and business capabilities of Active Re. They play a fundamental role in driving our continuous improvement, ensuring a sustained path of excellence and development.

ACTIVE RE ON THE ROAD TO SUSTAINABILITY

By MÓNICA ROJAS

Sr. Reinsurance Collections Analyst

Talking about sustainability implies recognizing that we have come a long way, with humanity understanding the need to care for the planet with all sectors of society; seeking to ensure that natural resources are used responsibly and that human activities do not have an irreversible negative impact on the planet.

Sustainability can be defined in many ways, but in writing this article I am sticking with what was stated in 1999 in the UN Global Compact where it was established as the “Capacity to satisfy the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to satisfy their own needs” and this leads us to an analysis as individuals where we ask ourselves: What can we do to have a sustainable planet?

At the 2015 UN meeting, it was identified that we weren't doing enough to help the planet, and that without immediate action, a sustainable future wasn't possible. The UN General Assembly adopted the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, an action plan for people, planet, and prosperity, which also goals to strengthen universal peace and access to justice. ¹ The agenda set out 17 goals that can be applied to society at large and organizations worldwide. As part of the global financial system, we play an important role in the adoption of the Sustainable Development Goals.

Should we, in insurance, ask ourselves how we can contribute to this? The insurance industry, as a risk manager and taker, and as an investor, has the potential to play a strategic role in achieving sustainable development. ² In short, the Insurers promote actions that anticipate and reduce risk. Insurance, beyond providing financial resilience, acts as a facilitator of solutions that can drive social and environmental sustainability.

The above is related to our mission as a company "Benefits for all" and our values "Respect, Integrity and Commitment"³ When analyzing each of them, Active Re, as a global insurance company, is working toward a better future and sustainable development for all. And from here, we can begin to consider Why is sustainability important in insurance? Sustainability in insurance goes beyond traditional risk management. It involves integrating environmental, social, and governance (ESG) considerations into all of an insurer's operations, from policy underwriting to investment management.⁴

In short, sustainability in insurance is not just a trend, but a necessity to ensure the long-term viability of the sector and contribute to a more sustainable future. The actions we each take every day will lead us to the sustainable development of our planet. How are you contributing today to a Sustainable Planet?
